FACILITATOR TOOLKIT

Do you call Aotearoa
New Zealand home?

TE TIRITI O WAITANGI

The work of InCommon is guided by Te Tiriti o Waitangi¹, the founding document of Aotearoa, New Zealand. We strive to develop and nurture honourable and respectful relationships with Māori as the Tangata Whenua² of Aotearoa.

*He ira tangata.
He ira rongomaiwhiti tāu.
Our differences make us unique,
and we all have things in common.*

Acknowledgements

The InCommon team wish to acknowledge and thank the support of our advisory group, Social Equity & Wellbeing Network (SEWN), The Ministry of Education, The Ministry for Ethnic Communities, Christchurch City Council, Rātā Foundation and the many individuals who have given their time and expertise so generously to this project.

² Tangata Whenua is a Māori term used to describe the first peoples of Aotearoa, the indigenous people born of the whenua (land).

VISION

Find commonalities, explore differences.

VALUES

Making connections
Fostering manaakitanga
Inspiring curiosity
Grounded in wairuatanga
Nurturing whanaungatanga

1 Background information

InCommon is a campaign developed in response to the Christchurch mosque attacks in the spirit of wairuatanga³. It builds on the premise that connection across diverse groups leads to more social inclusion and less racist behaviours.

This project encourages people to think about and connect with those from different cultural, ethnic and faith backgrounds. It celebrates both diversity and inclusiveness; our differences make us unique, and we've all got things in common.

InCommon was launched in Christchurch by Ngāi Tūāhuriri and Mayor Lianne Dalziel in April 2021. It is a collaborative project of individuals, community groups, local and central government.

2 The InCommon Quiz

The InCommon Quiz is designed to help us build connections with others based on our similarities and our interest in exploring our differences. The quiz may encourage you to embark on more cultural learning. Developing your ability to connect with others is a first step. Just like well-connected individuals, well connected workplaces and communities thrive – there is less discrimination, less crime and less racism.

The quiz is made up of a series of questions that range from light heartedly highlighting our individuality (favourite pizza toppings, past activities), to those that gently provide deeper insight into the aspects that make up our cultural and faith identities. This combination of questions makes for a fun engaging InCommon session.

An online version of the quiz is available for individuals to take on our website. Taking just four minutes to complete, respondents answer questions like 'Do you like to dance?' and 'Do you have friends who were born in a different country to you?' They can then compare their results with others, and they may be surprised by what they find.

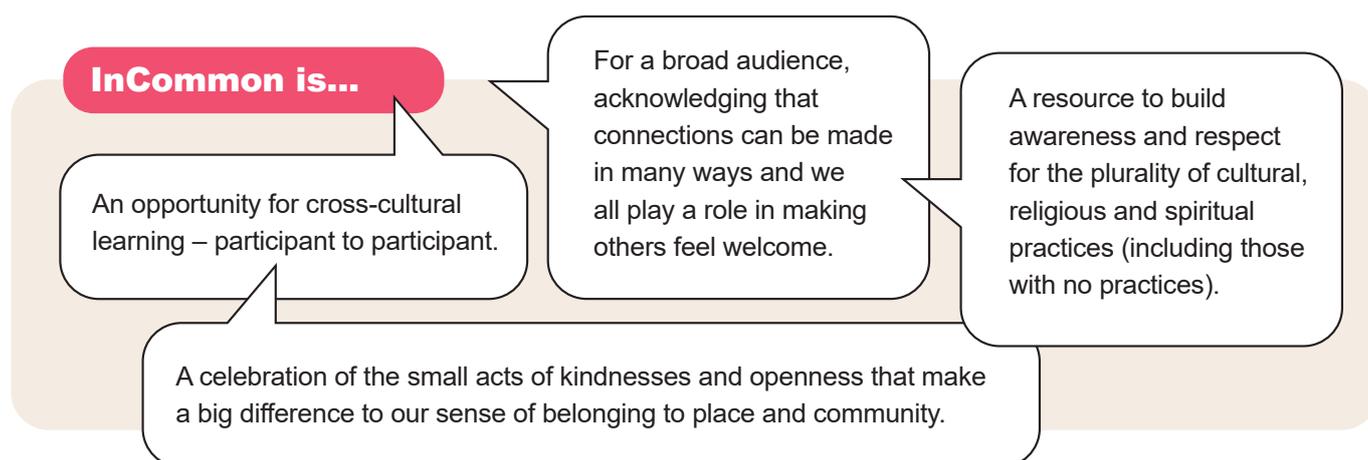

³ Wairuatanga relates to spirituality and the right to freedom of religion and belief. The other kupu Māori words used in our values translate as follows: manaakitanga refers to the process of showing care and respect for others and whanaungatanga is the building of relationships that provide people a sense of belonging.

3 Purpose of this toolkit

This toolkit provides information to support cross-cultural learning and resources to enable the facilitation of an InCommon Quiz session.

The quiz at the heart of the InCommon campaign highlights how similar we are to others who, at first, may appear to be very different. Exploring the questions in the quiz acts as a reminder that our differences are often only skin deep.

We hope that your InCommon session inspires participants to reflect on their attitudes and actions and take small steps towards engaging with people who are different from them.

4 What you will find in this toolkit and the toolkit resource file

This toolkit contains:

- A Facilitator Roadmap with guidance notes and questions to support decision making around your InCommon session.
- Appendices that include:
 - Information about InCommon branded materials.
 - Several versions of the InCommon quiz, to meet your needs when running an InCommon session:
 - InCommon Welcome Activity
 - InCommon Bingo Card
 - InCommon Mini-Quiz
 - InCommon 10-Question Quiz
 - InCommon 20-Question Quiz
 - Participant handouts, including a handout with further information for participants and an evaluation sheet for attendees.

In the toolkit resource file (available at incommon.org.nz/toolkit) you will also find:

- An InCommon PowerPoint (containing a short video on InCommon)
- InCommon Welcome Activity question JPEGs
- Further information for organisations
- Further information for individuals

5 Facilitator guide

Your intentions matter. Being genuinely open and willing to create a positive environment that encourages people to connect are key to facilitating a great session.

When we feel safe, we are better able to share our thoughts and opinions, open ourselves up to connecting with others and have fun.

What makes a great InCommon facilitator? Someone who...

- Is a confident communicator
- Creates a positive and safe environment
- Values relationships and manaakitanga
- Demonstrates empathy
- Is experienced working with people from a range of diverse backgrounds
- Is aware of their own culture and prepared to have a conversation about it
- Doesn't make assumptions about someone else's culture or faith
- Respects confidentiality
- Ensures inappropriate comments are well managed

Doing this work requires humility and curiosity, you may not always get it right, but it's important to be open to the experience of learning because connecting with others enriches everyone's lives.

Things to think about before you start:

- There is no right or wrong culture or religion.
- Acknowledging participants' views, ensuring they feel heard and respected, promotes a sense of cultural safety.
- Who we are, how we think, feel and act is shaped by our history and the culture we grew up in.
- In Aotearoa New Zealand people are free to practice any religion or faith, including no faith.

Talking about culture and identity

Cultural difference can be challenging to members of the majority culture, arousing a range of feelings and responses. Majority cultural norms (things that most people regard as normal, typical or standard) are often taken for granted. For Pākehā, for example, some actions, behaviours and beliefs are assumed to be "right", implying that anything different is "wrong."

If you are facilitating an InCommon session with Pākehā participants, encourage reflection on how their views are not the only way to experience the world.

The broad values of an ethnic community may change over time and may be influenced through adapting to a dominant culture and integration into New Zealand society.

Remember that diversity exists within ethnic communities, and that community members are individuals.

Make sure to emphasise that generic terms such as Christian, Muslim, Chinese, Māori, and Pākehā can encompass people with a diverse range of views, cultural experiences, religious practices, social backgrounds and personal histories.

FACILITATOR ROADMAP

A step-by-step guide to running your InCommon session.

BEFORE

Things to think about before you start.

Q1 Why do you want to run an InCommon session?

- Who are your participants? What do you think they need and/or want?
- What would you like participants to get out of their session?

Q2 Which InCommon quiz is right for your team or group?

- InCommon Welcome Activity:
 - This activity is the shortest version of the quiz, it could sit alone as a short activity or be run as an icebreaker at the start of a conference or longer training session.
 - Participants answer one question, which they write on a sticker, alongside their name, and wear as they mingle as a group.
 - Would work well with a large group of people who are new to each other.
 - Fun way to introduce yourself and prompt conversation between new people.
 - Check out these resources:
 - InCommon Welcome Activity questions
 - InCommon Welcome Activity stickers
- InCommon Bingo:
 - A fun and active version of the quiz that encourages people to connect with more than one person.
 - Participants circle their answers to each six questions on their Bingo card, then move around the room and find a different person to match each of their answers – or not!
 - Would work well with medium or large sized groups, where people are new to each other or know each other well.
 - Check out these resources:
 - InCommon Bingo Card
- InCommon Mini-Quiz:
 - This short quiz encourages people to pair up with someone new and connect over six questions.
 - The length of time this quiz takes depends on the level of conversation you encourage. You can always encourage people to find a second partner to complete the quiz with again if they finish early.
 - Would work well with small – large sized groups, where people are new to each other or know each other well.
 - Check out these resources:
 - InCommon Mini-Quiz sheet

- InCommon 10-question Quiz and 20-question Quiz
 - Longer versions of the quiz that encourage people to pair up with someone new and connect over ten – twenty questions.
 - The length of time these quizzes take depends on the level of conversation you encourage. You can always encourage people to find a second partner to complete the quiz with again if they finish early.
 - Would work well with small – large sized groups, where people are new to each other or know each other well.
 - Check out these resources:
 - InCommon 10-question Quiz sheet
 - InCommon 20-question Quiz sheet

Q3 How much time do you have for your InCommon session?

- 5 minutes – try the InCommon Welcome Activity or the InCommon Mini-Quiz. Two versions of the quiz containing one – five questions.
- 15 – 30 minutes – try the InCommon Bingo activity or the InCommon 10-question Quiz. Two versions of the quiz containing six – ten questions.
- 1 hour – try the InCommon 20-question Quiz. A version of the quiz containing twenty questions.

Q4 Will you check in with participants before your InCommon session and provide information about what they should expect?

- Yes? Try these resources:
 - Use the Things to think about before you start prompts in Section 5: Facilitator Guide to help you start a conversation about your session.
 - Use the InCommon Powerpoint to introduce your group to the InCommon mahi, available at: incommon.org.nz/toolkit.

Q5 How will you advertise your session and get people engaged?

- Promote your upcoming session by posting hard copy and digital InCommon posters throughout your organisation and in your internal communications.
- Try these resources:
 - InCommon posters
 - InCommon email signatures and social media tiles available for download at: incommon.org.nz/

Reflection:

How might you engage the hearts and minds of your participants in this kaupapa?

Will buy-in be a problem?

Have you offered participants the opportunity to 'opt out' if they're uncomfortable about participating?

Q6 Have you prepared your materials?

- InCommon Welcome Activity – the welcome activity is designed so that you can choose one (or more!) questions from the selection of JPEGs provided, these can be used in hard copy or as part of a PowerPoint. We recommend:
 - Displaying a hard copy version of your InCommon Welcome Activity question where participants arrive/sign in, along with the InCommon Welcome Activity stickers and some pens.
 - Displaying your Welcome Activity question on a large screen in an area where people will be mingling to prompt conversation.

Tip:

If possible, plan more time than you think is necessary so you can let the conversation flow.

Tip:

Give participants different options for communicating their thoughts about the session with you, in case they do not feel comfortable bringing up their concerns in a group situation.

Kaupapa – topic, policy, matter for discussion

Tip:

Consider providing kai so that people can continue to connect in a less structured way, following the quiz activity.

Kai – food/meal

DURING

Consider both the practical and the wellbeing needs of your participants during your InCommon session.

Q7 How will you arrange the space?

- InCommon Welcome Activity and Bingo – Run the activity in an open space large enough for people to move around and interact with others quickly.
- InCommon Mini-Quiz – Ensure the space enables people to pair up quickly and stand or sit together.
- InCommon 10-question Quiz and 20-question Quiz – Ensure the space enables pairs to break apart from others and sit together.

Reflection:

What would help participants feel comfortable and engaged?

Q8 How will you welcome participants and start the InCommon session?

- InCommon Welcome Activity, Bingo and Mini-Quiz – Provide a quick introduction to the aims of your session and provide some resources for participants who would like to learn more.
 - Try this resource:
 - InCommon Powerpoint
- InCommon 10-question Quiz and 20-question Quiz – Use the InCommon PowerPoint to support your introduction. Discuss how you can create a safe space for everyone, co-create some ground rules, refer to the Things to think about before you start and Talking about culture and identity prompts in Section 5: Facilitator Guide to prepare.
 - Try this resource:
 - InCommon Powerpoint: available at incommon.org.nz/toolkit

Reflection:

How might your participants react to the InCommon session?

Tip:

Ground rules could include:

- We are open to finding our similarities as well as exploring our differences.
- We will respect what others choose to share.
- We are here to learn from each other.

Q9 What will your InCommon session look like?

- InCommon Welcome Activity:
 - Display one quiz question as participants arrive.
 - Ask participants to write their name and their answer to the question on an InCommon Welcome sticker.
 - Allow participants to help themselves to a participant handout for more information about InCommon.
 - As participants to mingle, ask them to take notice of the InCommon stickers others are wearing and start up a conversation based on the commonalities or differences in their answers.
 - Let the conversation flow.
 - Check out these resources:
 - InCommon Welcome Activity questions
 - InCommon Welcome Activity stickers
 - Beyond the Quiz – Participant Handout

Reflection:

Have you prepared for how you will manage any difficult interactions?

What challenges might come up from your participants?

- InCommon Bingo:
 - Provide all participants with an InCommon Bingo card and pen.
 - Participants circle answers to each of the 6 questions, then move around the room and find different people who match their answers – or not!
 - Let the conversation flow.
 - Allow participants to keep their InCommon Bingo cards as prompts for future conversations.
 - Check out these resources:
 - InCommon Bingo Card
 - Beyond the Quiz – Participant Handout
- InCommon Mini-Quiz:
 - Provide each participant with a copy of the InCommon Mini-Quiz.
 - Pair participants up.
 - Let the conversation flow.
 - Notice not only what is said, but what is not said (e.g. body language, voice, pauses) so that you can feed these back during the debrief following your session – if desired.
 - Check out these resources:
 - InCommon Mini-Quiz sheet
 - Beyond the Quiz – Participant Handout
 - Participant Evaluation
- InCommon 10-question Quiz and 20-question Quiz
 - Provide each participant with a copy of the InCommon 10-question Quiz or 20-question Quiz sheet.
 - Pair participants up.
 - Let the conversation flow.
 - Notice not only what is said, but what is not said (e.g. body language, voice, pauses) so that you can feed these back during the debrief following your session – if desired.
 - Encourage participants to take photos with lozenges, these can be used for internal communications like newsletters.
 - Check out these resources:
 - InCommon 10-question Quiz sheet
 - InCommon 20-question Quiz sheet
 - Lozenges
 - Beyond the Quiz – Participant Handout
 - Participant Evaluation

Tip:
For groups where everyone knows each other well, suggest participants answer on behalf of their partner – a fun way of finding out how well you know each other!

Q10 How might you wrap up and debrief following the session?

- Debrief following your session by feeding back some of what you noticed while people were engaging with the quiz, what was said and not said (e.g. body language, voice, pauses).
- Ask participants to discuss:
 - Something they've learned today
 - One commitment they'd be willing to make to further their cultural learning
 - A story about their culture, family tradition, or a cross cultural friendship and what they have in common with that friend

Information about branded materials

8 A2 sized glossy posters featuring pairs of people representing different faiths and ethnicities

These can be displayed prior to your InCommon session.

InCommon lozenges (pink lozenge shaped signs capturing an abbreviated statement about the things we have in common)

Lozenges can be used to wrap up your InCommon session. They provide a light and fun photo opportunity for participants. The images can then be displayed within your space to celebrate the outcomes of the session. Participants may also wish to share their images on their social accounts. Hashtag #incommonnz

InCommon stickers

InCommon stickers can be used alongside the InCommon Welcome Activity. These enable participants to display their name and their answer to the welcome question. Alternatively blank stickers with a place to write participants name and their answer can be used.

InCommon Welcome Activity

Like an icebreaker activity, the InCommon Welcome Activity is designed for the start of a conference or longer training session.

Choose one, or more, of the following questions for your activity. You can display them within a PowerPoint or in hard copy. JPEG files of these questions are available for download along with the other quiz tools at incommon.org.nz/toolkit.

Stickers are available with space for participant names and their answer to a welcome question, see Appendix: Information about branded materials.

Activity instructions:

- Write your name and your answer to the question on an InCommon Welcome sticker.
- While mingling with others, notice their InCommon stickers and start up a conversation based on the commonalities or differences with your answer.

Beyond the quiz

The InCommon Quiz is designed to give you confidence and an opportunity to connect with others. We don't know what you'll find in common, but research tells us positive human connections greatly impacts wellbeing and increases your lifespan and sense of contentment. Connection benefits more than just the individual - well-connected workplaces and communities are thriving workplaces and communities, resulting in less crime, less discrimination, and less racism.

Feel free to use the quiz questions you practised today as a fun way to go a little deeper when connecting with others – whether that's with a new family at your kid's school or the person next to you in the queue at the supermarket.

Simple tips for connecting

Be curious	Try new things. Food, dance, cultural events, learning new hobbies or joining a sports team can be hugely beneficial for your wellbeing and a great opportunity to find out what you have in common with others. Join us on social media, we love to promote cross-cultural events.
Be inclusive	If you are involved in a group at work, school or in your community, encourage participation from everyone, especially if you notice a range of diverse views aren't offered. Sometimes individuals don't want to share, or be in the limelight and that is OK, but it makes a difference to ask for and include the voices, thoughts and opinions of everyone.
Be brave	You will probably make mistakes at some point. That happens. Don't let the fear of making mistakes keep you from building new relationships. If you say or do something that is insensitive, you can learn something from it. Ask the affected person what bothered or offended them, apologise, and keep connecting.
Be an ally	Demonstrate that you are willing to take a stand against racism or discrimination when it occurs. Being an ally is a powerful way to show manaakitanga, kindness and build connection. If you belong to the majority culture, promote the voices less heard.

What to do if you are witnessing or experiencing racism online

For incidents of racial abuse in the community, dial 105 or visit police.govt.nz Police Non-Emergency Reporting. Remember that your physical safety is important, so only call if it is safe to do so. If you witness a situation in which you see harm or it is threatened call 111.

In addition, you can raise a complaint with the New Zealand Human Rights Commission. Go to their website hrc.co.nz for more information or call their Infoline toll free 0800 496 877.

You can report any incidents of racism online at netsafe.org.nz and read more on race-based online abuse.
